

W3.2 Follow a highly structured, externally developed plan (or text model) to organize information about a single familiar topic in very simple structures such as responses to prompts for everyday information in several related sentences.

W3.3 Appropriately use everyday, familiar vocabulary (such as words with personal significance and commonly-used adjectives, pronouns, and prepositions) and simple sentence structures to produce several sentences on a topic with minimal attention to audience.

W3.4 Make a few simple content changes based on review and feedback from others.

My Computer

Directions: Choose one important thing in your life to write about. You can use the paragraphs below as a guide if you like.

I love my DELL laptop computer. It is one year old. It is small and white with a beautiful green design on the outside. It is fast and helpful. I often use my computer at home to do school work. I also use my computer to look for information on the internet. Sometimes I buy things online, but I don't do this very often.

One of my favorite things to do with my computer is email my friends. I have many friends who live in California and other places far away, so this is a good thing for me. I can keep in contact with my friends even though they don't live near me. My computer helps me with work, with entertainment and with connecting with my friends. This computer is my computer only. I don't have to share it with anyone, and that is really great.
