

For our instructors:

Meghan Obom, our AmeriCorps volunteer for 2010-2011 is helping us to raise funds to benefit our Immigrant Student Scholarship. She would like to create and sell a cookbook that represents the vast diversity of our students' cuisine. She is willing to put together the final product, but she will need the content from our students.

Here's how you can help.

1. Plan a class project around this topic on one of your lab days.
2. Have students write up a recipe.
3. Have students include a short explanation of why a particular dish is important to them. (For example: Every Sunday my grandmother made this dish, so when I eat it today, I always think of my grandmother....) The idea is to personalize the recipes.
4. Include the recipe. (All the text should be sent in corrected version to Meghan.)
5. Add a picture of the dish and/or the student if possible.
6. Email the contribution to Meghan at <mailto:mobom@greenriver.edu> by the end of this quarter.
