Syllabus Assignment
Due Wednesday, April 1, 2008

Your carefully written answers to the following questions will be due at the beginning of class on Wednesday, April 1.

1. What is your instructor’s name?

2. When and where are your instructor’s office hours?

3. What happens when class is cancelled? How does this affect assignments and tests?

4. What are the potential consequences for cheating and plagiarism?

5. What is your @mail.greenriver.edu email address? (You’ll need to set up your G.R.C.C. email before you can answer this.)

6. What are the dates of the five exams? And the final exam?

7. When is the first online quiz due?
When is written homework due?

How many solutions to daily practice problems are you expected to share in class during the quarter?

Lex doesn’t like working or coming to class but is good at taking tests. If Lex gets perfect scores on all five exams, but never does any homework, in-class activities or online quizzes, what final percentage grade will Lex get in the course? And what decimal grade does this correspond to?

Clark has more difficulty with tests but works hard. Clark gets 70% on every exam, including the final. But, by working hard, Clark gets 90% on all written homework, and gets full credit on the online quizzes, in-class activities and daily practice homework. What final percentage grade will Clark get in this course? (You can round to the nearest whole percent.) And what decimal grade does this correspond to?

What grade do you need in this class to move on to Math 97?

What is the last day to officially withdraw from classes this quarter?

What is the last day to withdrawal without the class appearing on your transcript?